

Disclaimer – Citibank Online Foreign Exchange (eFX)

Any examples and screenshots shown are hypothetical and provided for illustrative purpose only. The scenarios are not based on the past performances of foreign currencies. Citibank is not making any prediction of future movements in foreign currencies. It does not represent all possible outcomes or describe all possible factors that may affect the payout of a transaction in Citibank Online Foreign Exchange (eFX).

Customers using eFX acknowledge and accept that all transactions they make are made solely upon their judgment and at their discretion and own risk. Nothing in Citibank's brochures, investment reports and/or any material supplied to the customer, nor any customer investment profiling conducted for the customer, shall be construed as Citibank's investment advice as regards the relative attractiveness of one investment option over another.

Foreign currency trading is subject to rate fluctuations, which may provide both opportunities and risks. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop loss" or "stop limit" orders, will not necessarily limit losses to the intended amounts. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders.

Customers who have any questions about their legal or tax positions as a result of opening an account with Citibank or effecting any transaction on an account with Citibank should engage an independent legal or tax adviser as they consider appropriate.

Exchange controls may apply from time to time to certain foreign currencies.

Information and data provided by third party providers are for general information only, and do not constitute a recommendation or solicitation to purchase or sell any security/position, and do not take into account any views promulgated by Citigroup, Inc.

FX poll is a collective estimate from third party analysts on the future price percentage change of the currency pairs. It should not be construed as a forecast of final target prices.